The 2011 issue of Animus will focus on the works of William Shakespeare, arguably the central figure of the Western literary canon and a ubiquitous cultural icon in school, theatre, and popular culture. Animus invites articles which address the ethical, political, religious, philosophical, rhetorical, and aesthetic dimensions or implications of Shakespeare's thought. In particular, we are interested in explorations of Shakespeare's representation of human nature. Deadline for submissions is June 15th, 2011.
